Products You Will Need

- Dulux Metallic Effect, Pearl Effect, Gold Effect or Stainless Steel Effect paint
- Quality masking tape
- A paint stirrer and drop sheet
- Medium nap roller, roller tray
- Depending on the look you are after – a wide brush, roller or muslin may be used

Preparation

- Carefully read and follow the instructions on the product label before you begin.
- Surface must be clean, dry and free from dust, oils and grease.
- Mask off the area with painters tape – where you don't want any paint, such as adjacent walls.
- Stir the paint well with a paint stirrer using an up and down scooping action. Make sure you scrape the bottom of the can to ensure particles are evenly distributed.
- Practice your application technique on a large, spare piece of board.

Application

- Brush around the edges of the wall or area you are painting.
- Apply the first base coat with the roller as you would normally paint. For a brushed finish look, lay off lightly in one direction with a brush. Allow drying time as specified on the label.
- Working in small sections, apply the second coat with the roller. For a brushed finish look, lay off lightly in one direction with a brush.
- Stainless Steel Effect requires a third coat.
- While the paint is still wet apply a texture. Using a wide brush, dry roller or muslin, drag the paint in a random, overlapping pattern. For a brushed finish, lay off lightly with a brush.

Suggested Areas To Paint

- Dulux Metallic Effect – interior feature walls, doors, trim areas and furniture.
- Dulux Pearl Effect – interior feature walls, furniture or accessories.
- Dulux Gold Effect – feature walls, trim areas or furniture.
- Dulux Stainless Steel Effect – interior feature walls, architectural features and home accessories.

Handy Tips

- All these finishes have a shine so they tend to highlight any surface defects.
- When painting, resist the temptation to touch up as you go as it will ruin the effect.
- In high traffic areas a clear coat is recommended. See label for more information.
