Boral hardwood cladding

Boral Hardwood Cladding

Hardwood timber cladding provides an envelope that protects a building. Hardwood timber cladding is an increasingly popular choice for finishing the outside of commercial and domestic buildings. It offers design freedom, ease of handling, a range of products and the natural beauty of Australian timber species.

Features

- Can be used in bush-fire prone areas up to BAL 29 (dependant on species natural fire resistance)
- Design flexibility for interior/exterior use
- Flexible and resilient to the stresses of foundation and natural seismic movements
- Can be used on a wide variety of foundation conditions because of its flexibility
- Light weight requiring smaller footings
- A long-lasting and durable external surface
- Some hardwood cladding species, such as Blackbutt, are naturally termite resistant
- Offers diverse design scope for lightweight commercial and residential structures
- Building a sustainable future - Boral Timber has full Chain of Custody certification which meets the Australian Forestry Standard (AFS) AS 4707-2006.
